Steps may include reducing fuel sources around the home, creating firebreaks, expanding defensible space or applying fire blocking gel or retardant to help prevent an approaching fire from reaching your home.

The efforts of WDS can increase the chances of saving your home during an active wildfire. With technology and nonstop monitoring, trained mitigation specialists and staff are assessing possible wildfire situations 24/7.

How It Works

WDS maps wildfire activity, so that they know if your home is at risk. Cincinnati is provided with specific information on the proximity and threat of active wildfires in relation to your home by WDS. This allows Cincinnati to determine when it is necessary to deploy mitigation resources to protect your home and property. Be sure to update your email address and phone number and to confirm your street address with your local independent agent representing Cincinnati to assure prompt service.

The steps taken to mitigate fire loss to your home may include these measures:

- removing brush and fuel sources and taking other nondestructive measures
- closing structure entryways, garage doors and windows
- moving wood piles and debris away from structures
- clearing gutters and roofs of debris
- monitoring for and extinguishing hot spots to prevent flare-ups

Temporary sprinkler systems may be used to wet down the area around your home to reduce the chance of an ignition. In situations of extreme threat, WDS may apply fire protection products to the property including fire blocking gel and fire retardant.

For information, coverage availability in your state, quotes or policy service, please contact your local independent agent recommending coverage.

Fire blocking gel is:

- applied to the home and surrounding vegetation to help prevent the exterior of the home from igniting
- removed from structures after the wildfire threat passes
- tested and approved by the USDA Forest Service
- safe, colorless, nontoxic and environmentally friendly

Fire retardant is:

- applied on nonmanaged vegetation around a property to help prevent the encroachment of fire to the property
- formulated specially for residential use and is the same product used for more than 50 years by the U.S. Forest Service

When properly applied following manufacturers instructions, both products are safe around plants, animals and people. WDS uses their professional judgment and industry best practices to determine the nature, necessity or extent of the services provided.
